UDC holds yearly banquet meeting

By MRS. MARGARET LEE

The Appomattox Chapter of the U.D.C. met at Maudes Restaurant on Thursday, June 16 at 6:30 p.m. for their annual Jefferson - Davis banquet meeting.

MR. JOHN B. MONTGOMERY, superintendent of the National Park in Appomattox, was guest speaker at the annual Jefferson-Davis United Daughters of the Confederacy dinner June 16.

Mrs. Lucille Ferrell, chapter president, welcomed the members and guests.

Pledge of Allegiance to the United States flag was led by Mrs. Margaret Lee.

Salute to the Virginia flag was led by Mrs. Mary Sue Gordon.

Salute to the Confederate flag was led by Mrs. Louise Plunkett.

Mrs. Ferrell read the ritual and Confederate prayer. Mrs. Otho W. Martin returned thanks for the meal.

Mr. John Gordon Martin of Appomattox was presented with a "Korean Cross of Military Service by Mrs. Harriett Cunningham, recorder of the crosses, and Mrs. Lucille Ferrell, chapter president.

Mrs. Hazel Lee Martin, historian, introduced the guest speaker.

Mr. John B. Montgomery, superintendent of the National Park in Appomattox, spoke on the "End of the Confederacy".

The Civil War was a major turning point in American History and one of the most traumatic experiences this nation has ever faced. Mr. Bruce Catton one of the best known historians of the Civil War, concluded his centennial history of the Civil War with a paragraph that perhaps sums it up very well.

"Something has been won; but it was nothing more, and at the same time nothing less, than a chance to make a new approach toward a goal that had to be reached if the war and the nation that had endured it had final meaning. The ship was moving through Lincoln's dream, toward a dark indefinite shore, it had a long way to go, and the sky contained no stars the ordinary mortal could see. All that was certain was that the voyage was under way?"

The meeting concluded when all joined hands singing "Bless Be The Tie".

MR. JOHN GORDON MARTIN was presented with a Korean Cross of Military Service by Mrs. Harriett Cunningham (left) and Mrs. Lucille Ferrell at the UDC meeting June 16.

Licensed health facilities

VDSS seeks comments

Between June 16 and August 16, the Virginia Department of Social Services' Licensing Division will accept public comments on a comprehensive revision of medical and health standards for six categories of licensed facilities.

The proposed revisions are designed to standardize medical requirements for children and adults admitted to licensed facilities and for staff employed by licensed facilities.

A total of 1,131 facilities with a combined capacity for 62,338 Virginia children and adults will be affected by the proposed changes in standards.

The two largest categories of facilities licensed by the Social Services Department are 620 Child Day Care Centers, with a combined capacity for 44,627 children, and 312 Homes for Adults with a combined capacity for 13,866 residents.

Other types of facilities include Adult Day Care Centers, Child Caring Institutions, Family Day Care Homes, and Family Day Care Systems.

"Since each set of licensing standards was originally developed at a different time, current sets of standards differ in their health requirements," explained Carolynne Stevens, the Department's Licensing Director. "Both licensed facilities and licensing staff have requested that health requirements be revised.

"In response to these concerns, the Licensing Division reviewed health requirements in each set of standards to assure that they reflect current medical thinking and are consistent with comparable regulations from this department and from other state agencies," Mrs. Stevens said. "The proposed revisions reflect current expert medical opinion of State Health Department representatives.

"Although the proposed revisions contain some relaxations compared to current health requirements, we believe that the new standards still provide essential protection to children and adults in the care of licensed facilities," Mrs. Stevens concluded.

Revisions to the standards for Child Care Centers also support a change to Virginia law which requires that all children have appropriate immunizations and that these immunizations be documented prior to admission to licensed centers. This law takes effect July 1.

Copies of the proposed revised standards have been mailed to all affected facilities and other interested parties. A copy of the proposed standards may also be obtained by calling the Department of Social Services toll-free at: 1-800-552-7091.

Comments will be received at the same toll-free number, which records comments for later transcription.

In addition to telephone comments at 1-800-552-7091, written comments may be mailed to: Mrs. Lee DelleDonne, Division of Licensing Programs, Virginia Dept. of Social Services, 8007 Discovery Drive, Richmond, Virginia 23288.

Written comments should be received by August 16.

'Shoe Show'

New shoe store opens at Plaza

Shoe Show has announced the opening of its new store in Appomattox. The store will carry a complete line of popular price footwear including dress, casual, sport and work shoes. Store hours will be 10:00 a.m. until 9:00 Monday - Saturday. Sunday 1:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m.

The local store will be managed by Margaret Monigold.

Shoe Show, which started in Kannapolis, N.C. in 1960 reporting sales of $55,000 the first year, has become a $24 million a year business.

The company has grown to 125 shoe stores and 7 men's clothing stores, which are located in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Maryland, and Washington, D.C. Shoe Show stores are located in strip shopping centers, malls and free standing locations.

The founder of the company, Robert B. Tucker, began his career in the shoe business by working part-time selling shoes during his senior year in high school. At the age of 22 he opened his first store in downtown Kannapolis, N.C. In the beginning, Tucker bought surplus, name brand stock from prestigious stores, warehoused them until the appropriate season, and then sold them at bargain prices.

Now the company employs five buyers who purchase shoes, handbags and accessories for the entire family from major manufacturers. The buying is done in volume in order to get lower prices which can be passed on to the customer.

The first store employed Tucker, his wife, and one part-time employee. The chain now employs approximately 500 people in its various locations.

Shoe Show's inventory control system is computerized and is done from their home office in Concord, North Carolina.

The company employs one full-time person in real estate to look for new locations and negotiate leases.

Taking into account the present economy, Shoe Show's short-term expansion calls for 10 to 15 stores a year, but long-range plans are to double the number of stores in the next five years. Over the years the company's growth has been steady, with expansion financed through retained earnings.

Shoe Show looks forward to providing both quality and fashion in shoes and accessories to the people of Appomattox, Va.

The Little Cheeper Dealer

We've hatched a new symbol to say what our customers have said for years. We trade a lot of cars to a lot of folks because we try to sell a little cheaper than our competitors.

Not so cheap that you don't get your money's worth, but cheap enough so that you're satisfied with a good car for a good value—year after year. And, of course, with our kind of mother hen service that makes a good deal even better.

Great cars for a little scratch and service after the sale. That's us—the Little Cheeper Dealer.
